CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 30.—The police to-day succeeded in unearthing a remarkable society among the Chinese. It is the Hip Yee Long Society, and numbers about 250 members. Its object is to prosecute the traffic in Chinese women for purposes of prostitution. Seven members have been arrested and the police are after more. The circumstances leading to the discovery are these: In June last, a girl (Ah Sing) fled to the police for protection from Ah Yee, keeper of a brothel. She was sent to Dr. Gibson's mission school and was there married by him to Yut Lung. On the 17th of this month, Yut Lung was brought before the Society at its room on Jackson street, and told there that he must pay Ah Hee $350 as the price of the girl or suffer death at their hands. He promised to pay and was released. He went to the school again and Gibson told him not to pay the money. He remains there afraid to appear on the streets. Yesterday he received a letter from Hin Len Po, advising him to pay $100, and warning him that he cannot long hide from the fearful power of the Hip Yee Long Society. The charge against the prisoners is conspiracy.

Thirty of these Indians and twenty Mexicans congregated at Pablo Sandoval's house on Saturday evening and commenced gambling. Liquor was procured and the excitement ran high until daylight, when a row occurred. Knives were drawn and fire[illegible] used. Not a single shot was fired. After a long struggle the Indians became masters and the Mexicans fled, leaving several badly wounded. Pablo Sandoval, whose family was there, refused to leave. He was taken prisoner and pinioned. The Indians started with the intention of carrying him off to kill him, or of taking him down into Lower California and getting a ransom for him. Ann Eliza Deposeth as Follows.

Salt Lake, July 30.—The papers in the case of Ann Eliza Webb Young praying for a divorce from Brigham Young were personally served yesterday. The Prophet seemed undisturbed and passed the documents to the Secretary. Following are the main points of complaint: Plaintiff avers she is the wife of defendant; that she was married on the 6th April '68; has two children by former marriage; has no personal property or means of living; for one year after marriage defendant lived with her; since then has almost entirely deserted her. Defendant sent her and her children to live on a farm four miles from Salt Lake City, where she and her only companion, her mother, has to do menial work for their support, dressing coarsely and faring badly. Defendant visited her occasionally and never remained over half an hour. He treated her with contempt and scorn and exacted the earnings of the farm. In the fall of 1872 by direction of defendant plaintiff took up a residence in Salt Lake City, which she has been compelled to leave from want of support and fear of violence from defendant. She has called upon defendant frequently for maintenance and has always been refused [illegible] She states that her husband has an income of $40,000 a month. She prays for lawyers' fees $20,000, $5,000 of which are to be paid down as preliminary fee and the balance on the termination of the suit, she meanwhile to receive $1,000 per month for support. She finally prays that the sum of $200,000 be set aside [illegible] as alimony. The reply is set for August [illegible].

DESCRIPTION OF THE TIGRESS

[illegible] fitted with new topmasts [illegible] Six feet, new bulwarks [illegible] furnished with a new steel running rigging.

Her [illegible] for about twelve [illegible] steward's office [illegible] Directly beneath this house between decks are the quarters of the other officers of the ship. Every small apartment with bunks and lockers ranged around the sides. No one of the officers will be able to stand erect in this cabin, and there will not be room even for a trunk. The clothing and effects of each officer must be stowed away in a little closet or locker over his bunk about two feet long, sixteen inches deep and perhaps eighteen inches high.

This cabin will be used as a mess room also.

BENEATH THE DECK

Are small holds, to be used for the Captain's stores, a small magazine of ammunition for fire arms and the paymaster's effects. There will be no armament on board save small arms for hunting purposes and perhaps a howitzer for signaling and saluting. The forecastle will be used for the stowage of sails, cordage, and so forth and the space between decks forward and muzzen will be the quarters for the crew with stores of various kinds tucked into available crannies. Steam coil pipes run all around the interior of the vessel for heating purposes, to be supplied from the boiler when under steam, but a number of stoves, with a supply of pipe, have been put on board for use in the event of the ship being frozen in or when the steam boilers are not in use. In the lower hold there are two hundred tons of coal and all the remainder of the space in the hold and between decks not otherwise occupied is filled chock with provisions and clothing. The provender includes every variety of canned meat and vegetables. Instead of taking out the ordinary ration of beef however the Tigress will take out only about one third or one fourth of the usual supply which would be furnished to a

A VESSEL OF HER SIZE

For a regular cruise. The balance will be made of pork in excess of the ordinary allowance of such meat, as it is said that pork is better food for a climate so excessively frigid. About one hundred and eighty bags of navy (hard) bread and one hundred half barrels of flour will be comprised in the supplies, with about a hundred half barrels of pork and beef, 50 boxes of canned roast beef and 20 or 25 boxes of pemmican. A vast amount of onions, tomatoes, pickles, potatoes and other vegetable antiscorbutics will also be in the stores and it is calculated that she will have a two years supply for about forty persons. Of course this is inclusive of the supplies sent forward to her use by the Juniata to Disco. The bulk of the latter vessel's cargo is understood to be coal for the Tigress.

Two large New Bedford whaleboats have been made for the rough work of the expedition, and a smaller and neater boat, which will doubtless serve as the "captain's gig."

About a dozen large saws of the cross-cut or gang pattern, and three tripod derricks shod and spiked with iron are included in the extraordinary portion of the ship's outfit. These saws will be used to cut the vessel clear of ice under certain circumstances. The derricks will be erected on the ice and the saws will be suspended from the apex of the tripods by a block and tackle. A lever or crank will be used to force the saw on the downward cut and the blade will be drawn upward by the block and pulley. This would seem, however, to be rather a laborious and complicated way of working things as a single man may cut six feet as rapidly using a saw with a cross piece handle in the ordinary upright fashion in which logs are sawn in pits or on trestles.

A peculiar portion of the ship's cargo, however, and extremely suggestive of her mission and its possible extent, are the

EIGHT SLEDGE RUNNERS

These runners are made of two and a half inch spruce plank and are each about sixteen feet long by about twelve inches deep. They are sloped or cut away at either end so as to resemble rudely the runner of a [illegible] sled such as is used by the poorer class of Canadian habitans. These points are capped with band iron and the lower or friction edge of the runner which comes in direct contact with the snow, is shod with a band of whalebone about half or three quarters of an inch in thickness. This becomes very smooth after a little use and is much lighter than an iron shoeing would be. The upper edge of the runners are pierced with numerous holes. The bed or bottom of the sled is composed of slats of tough wood about five feet in length and curved so as to resemble barrel staves. The ends of the slats are provided with two notches and these ends will be tightly bound with thongs to the upper edges of the runners, the thongs being interlaced through the holes above described. These sledges are built after the most approved Esquimaux fashion and one of them will carry fifteen or twenty persons. In the event of their being called into requisition to search overland or rather over ice for the Polaris each sledge would carry four or five persons and all the clothing and provisions they would need for a ten days journey.

FIFTEEN TO TWENTY FIVE [illegible]

Are needed for each sledge according to the weight or number of persons to be carried.

A set of spare spars and a spare topmast and topgallant mast lie on the deck to meet other [illegible]

There will be no scientific apparatus on board the vessel, as her voyage will not be one of exploration but purely a search [illegible]. As the vessel is so very small and every mouth will need a daily ration there will be no room [illegible] people on board. Everybody must make himself useful and the captain, chief officer and paymaster have dispensed with the usual assistance of clerks. They will do their own writing and there will not be even a captain's servant on board.

Commander Greer has expressed the belief that he would not be at all surprised to find the Polaris at Disco or Uppernavik on his arrival there. This being the opinion of Capt. Buddington would undoubtedly make it [illegible] effort to work his vessel out as he could [illegible] Northumberland Island [illegible] Under these circumstances it would only be common sense [illegible]

THE MONSTER AIR-SHIP

DESCRIPTION OF DIMENSIONS, MATERIAL, ETC.

In answer to numerous inquiries on the subject the New York Graphic, patron of the enterprise, gives the following details as to the dimensions, material, etc. of the balloon to be used in the great transatlantic voyage. They are from specifications made by Mr. Donaldson. There will be two balloons, the largest of which will be 48 feet in circumference, 100 feet in diameter and 110 feet in height. When inflated and ready to start, the extreme height of the apparatus from the crown of the balloon to the keel of the lifeboat will be 160 feet.

The great balloon will require 4,316 yards of cloth. The material is unbleached sheeting of a thick close quality, of the brand known as "Indian Orchard," purchased from Eldridge, Durham & Co., 340 Broadway. The crown of the balloon will be doubled for a distance of 50 feet from the top with 150 yards of the same material and a third thickness will be added of Manchester Mills bleached, of which 550 yards are required.

There will be 14,080 yards, or eight miles of sewing, in which 10,137,000 stitches will be made. The stitching is now being performed at the show rooms of the Domestic Sewing Machine Company, corner of Broadway and Fourteenth street, by a force of twelve seamstresses. The thread used is silk and cotton, the top being all silk.

The valve of the balloon will be three feet in diameter and made of Spanish cedar, with a rubber coated clapper closing on a brass plate. The valve fixtures and top of the balloon are the essential parts of the apparatus and are being constructed with special care to guard against any accident or derangement.

The network will be composed of three-strand tarred rope, known as "marlin." The width of the net will be 212 meshes, and its breaking strength will be 58,300 pounds. Five hundred pounds of "marlin" will be used. From the netting 54 ropes ¾ inches in diameter, of Manilla, will connect with the concentrating rings. These ropes will each be 90 feet in length, or 4,770 feet in the aggregate. The concentrating rings will be three in number, to guard against breakage, and will be each fourteen inches in diameter, each ring being of wood, iron bound. These rings will sustain the car, life-boat and trailing rope and will bear the strain when the anchor is thrown out in landing. From the concentrating rings 24 Manilla inch ropes, each 22 feet long, or requiring 528 feet in all will depend and form the frames for an octagonal shaped car. They will be kept in place by light hoops, made of ash.

The lower ropes will be connected with network and over the network at the bottom of the car a light pine floor will be laid loosely so that it can be thrown out if required. The car will be covered with duck of which fifty yards will be needed. Attached to the side of the car will be a light iron windlass from which the boat and trail rope can be raised and lowered as may be desired. From a pulley attached to the concentrating rings a heavy Manilla rope will fall down through the car and thence to a sling attached to which will be a lifeboat. The boat will be of the most approved and careful construction. It will have water-tight compartments, sliding keel, and will be so made that it will be self-righting. The boat will be provided with a complete outfit of oars and sails and to it will be lashed instruments, guns, lines, &c., and provisions for thirty days, all in water-tight cases.

The trail rope, by which the aeronaut can maintain any desired altitude without resorting to ballast, will be of Manilla rope 1¼ inch thick and 1,000 feet long.

The car will be fully provided with instruments, provisions, &c., independently of the boat. It will be so constructed as to be taken apart piecemeal and disposed of as ballast. It will carry about 5,000 pounds of ballast, which will consist of bags of sand each carefully weighed and marked. Among the instruments to be carried in the car there will be a galvanic battery with an alarm, two barometers, two chronometer watches, a compass, thermometer, a wet and dry bulb thermometer, a hygrometer, compass, quadrant, chart, parachutes with fire balls attached and so arranged as to explode when striking the water, so as to indicate the direction traversed, marine glasses, two vacuum tubes, a lime stove, &c. A number of carrier pigeons will be taken along and dispatched at intervals on the route with intelligence of the progress of the expedition.

The smaller balloon will be forty feet in height and thirty four feet in diameter, and will be made from 408 yards of "Manchester Mills." Its network will consume twenty pounds of forty thread cotton cord and six pounds of Italian hemp. It will be attached to the concentrating rings of the large balloon, and will be used as may be required to test the upper currents, to assist in feeding the large balloon.

The balloon will be coated with a varnish made of boiled linseed oil, beeswax and benzine, and of these ingredients 1,000 gallons will be used. The capacity of the great balloon will be 600,000 cubic feet of gas, but it will be inflated with but 400,000 cubic feet, which at the height of one mile and three quarters will expand sufficiently to fill the balloon. The lifting power of illuminating gas is about 35 pounds to the 1,000 feet, so that the balloon will have a lifting capacity of 14,000 pounds. The pressure will be 1¼ pound to the square inch.

The weight may be summed up as follows: Balloon 7,000 pounds; net, marlin, ropes, 500 pounds; car 100 pounds; anchor and grapnels 200 pounds; windlass 300 pounds; total, 8,100 pounds. Then 1,500 pounds will be allowed for passengers and ballast.

The amount of receipts over expenses in [illegible] county, for the year ending July 12th was $[illegible].

It is reported that the Lower [illegible] Mills have shut down for a time, for what cause is not stated.

A Salem burglar has reached the end of a rope, but not the last [illegible] He stole a well bucket.

Mr. Craven left Salem last Tuesday for the Klamath Indian Agency, whither he has gone to assist in the erection of a flouring mill on the reservation.

The wife of Wm. Moreland, of Clackamas county, was thrown from a horse last week. Her foot caught in the stirrup and she was dragged some distance, receiving severe but not fatal injuries.

A letter from Eldorado, Baker county, says the Burnt River Ditch is running 800 or 900 inches of water, but a great many miners are idle because they cannot get water to work their claims, as the company is using the most of it in their quartz gulch.

A Salem hen has laid an egg which is flattened as though it had been forcibly compressed while the shell was yet soft. The flattened surface is surrounded by what seems to be a wreath or a halo of divergent rays not unlike the representations we sometimes see of the sun or moon.

Our Pendleton correspondent under date of July 28th, says: "Two Indians confined in jail escaped last night by dodging by the Deputy Sheriff when he took supper to them. They had light shackles on, which they had doubtless filed off with an old butcher knife, as one was found in the jail. They have not been recaptured."

In the Supreme Court at Salem last Monday, an opinion was announced in the case of Whitlow vs Reese involving the title to the town site of Lafayette in favor of plaintiff. In the case of Foster vs Monteith, appeal from Linn county, the argument was concluded. On Tuesday the motion was sustained dismissing the appeal in the case of Holcomb vs Teal. The latter is an appealed case from Polk county.

The Statesman of Wednesday says: "The steamer Success came up from below on Monday, meeting with no resistance from sandbars, and reached here in good time. She brought for this place about thirty tons of freight and considerable for points up the river. Among her freight we noticed two threshing machines complete for the hardware firms of the city and 9,000 pounds of wool shipped to the Factory Company from San Francisco.

Mr. Tilton, a Chicago capitalist, and Mr. Jos. Meacham, an old California ditch man, are now endeavoring to organize a new company at Baker City for the purpose of building a new ditch with the view of supplying the mines of Gimbletville and the surrounding country with plenty of water to work their claims. The work of building the ditch will be commenced at Gimbletville and run thence to the north fork of John Day's valley, a distance of 22 miles, where they will tap Clear Creek, a stream containing several thousand inches of water.

The Statesman says: "From A. H. Breyman, who has returned from Eastern Oregon, we learn something of interest regarding the Ochoco mines about which so much has been written. He informs us that nearly all have left or are now leaving the mines, some discouraged, and some yet with the belief that a fortune lies buried there, and that they will get their share. The principal difficulty seems to be the want of water with which to work in the gulches and this want cannot be supplied to any great extent until next spring. Of the few who yet remain at the mines some are experienced miners from Canyon City. They are at work prospecting in the bed of Ochoco creek, and meet with some success. They have a good opinion of the mines, and from prospecting expect to find gold in the bed of the creek in paying quantities. But should their expectations be realized, Mr. Breyman says there will never be a large mining camp at that place. Just before leaving, Mr. Breyman learned that further down the Ochoco valley, on what is known as Mill creek, a metal had been discovered which was pronounced by the discoverers to be silver. A specimen was examined by a silversmith in Upper Ochoco who unhesitatingly confirmed the opinion of others who had examined it. Should it prove to be silver it will prove a source of much wealth, for it is said that there is an abundance."

THE TERRITORIES

The mercury got up to nearly 100 in the shade at Walla Walla nearly every day last week.

Good young beef cattle can be purchased at Walla Walla at the low rate of three cents per pound.

The market for the new wheat crop at Walla Walla opened at the low price of 40 cents per bushel.

On Saturday last Dr. Lindsley and Rev. Mr. Crowl organized the First Presbyterian Church at Tacoma with a membership of ten persons.

The Congregational Union tent at Tacoma is used as a lodging house at night and about 40 men stretch out on their blankets on and under its floor every night.

Trinidad, Colorado, shipped during the past year, seven hundred thousand pounds of wool, between ninety and one hundred thousand pounds of pelts and five hundred thousand pounds of other freights.

Alonzo Leland and twenty five other persons have filed articles of incorporation to work the Rescue, Sampson and W. B. Knott lodes, in Warrens, Idaho; capital stock $200,000, divided into shares of $10 each.

A. B. Baker, Division Agent for the Northwestern Stage Company, has let contracts for furnishing hay to the Company as follows: Silver City, $28 per ton; Wagontown, $24; [illegible] creek, $20; the Company Ranch, Jordan Valley, $12.

Governor Bennett, of Idaho, has respited [illegible] Pickett, who was to have been hung at Lewiston on the 28th of July, until August 29th. Pickett having been tried in the United States Court, the Governor can only grant a reprieve or stay of execution until the matter is laid before the President.

Governor Elbert, of Colorado, has received favorable responses from the Governors of Montana, Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming and New Mexico upon the subject of a convention for the purpose of taking some steps towards a system of irrigation in the western country. [illegible] the convention in Denver the [illegible] October.

Mr. [illegible], the little surveyor who spent last winter and spring in Olympia, has discovered still another one of those vacant places—80 acres, only two miles from Tacoma, [illegible], worth about two hundred dollars an acre, and has entered upon the pursuit of farming, as a means of holding his claim. It is strange how many vacant homesteads have been found there, and queer that the railroad company or private individuals never before discovered them. Such is luck.

They don't object to Chinese in St. George, Utah. A correspondent of the Salt Lake Herald writing from that place says: "We are [illegible], ourselves at work for want of help, wish you would send us a thousand of the 'Heathen Chinee'; we need them every one. We wish we could send them for we have others to spare."

The rabbits are playing sad havoc with the grain fields in Boise valley. The destroying little pests are nearly as thick as grasshoppers in a grasshopper season. The farmers are shooting and feeding them to their hogs, killing a thousand or two on a few acres of ground. Several farmers estimate the destruction of wheat alone on the south side of the river at 2,000 bushels.

The Idaho World says that G. W. Crafts proposes to erect a twenty stamp mill on the well known Banner quartz ledge this fall, if the citizens will construct a wagon road from Gold Hill to Banner City, a distance of four or five miles. The World urges the propriety of raising the money, and so do we think the people of Idaho City might afford to do something towards this road if necessary. By all means have the road built if that will insure the mill. This is a rich district and has lain idle for a long time. The returns from the precious metals will more than pay the outlay in adding to the wealth of this part of the Territory the past year.

The Owyhee Avalanche of the 26th of July says: "A man who calls himself David Case has recently been doing a lively business in the horse-stealing line. A few days ago he stole two horses and a saddle and a bridle in Nevada, after which he crossed over the Oregon line and stole nine more horses from a man named Smith, on Ten-Mile creek, this side of Camp McDermitt. Smith and another man followed the thief whom they captured, and recovered the horses in the vicinity of the Forks of the Owyhee. Smith sent his companion home with the horses, and brought Mr. Case to Silver last Sunday, and delivered him into the hands of the Sheriff. Case was taken before Justice Lyman on Monday, who committed him to jail, where he now remains awaiting a legal requisition from either Oregon or Nevada."

There is all manner of talk about the intention of the company in the laying out of the town, and of future work. A gentleman connected with the survey [illegible] the Tribune that the city would be laid out in conformity with the shore line of the bay. The blocks are to be 250 by 300 feet, twelve lots, each 40 by 120, to the block, one wide alley of 40 feet in each block; streets all 80 feet in width, and avenues 100. Some 600 acres only will be laid off and put in the market. About the center, surrounding a beautifully formed mound, will be a ten-acre park. A long and broad avenue from the water's edge into the country is in contemplation for the country trade and pleasure driving. A dock to deep water, and with a front of 800 feet, will be constructed at once and track laid [illegible] for the cars to go down to the ships. A [illegible] will also be laid down to the mill dock in the present town, for the convenience of the mills [illegible] in their building [illegible]. The shops, round houses, etc., will be up on the Puyallup mud flat, two or three miles [illegible]

The Daily Oregonian.

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 31, 1873.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR PHILANTHROPISTS.

Readers of the Oregonian may have noticed among the San Francisco dispatches published yesterday morning this item:

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—Twenty-two Chinese women were sold at auction [illegible]. Young girls brought as high as $500 each [illegible] from $100 to $250. They were all consigned to one of the Six Chinese Companies.

Similar paragraphs have come over the wires a number of times during the last spring and summer, though none that we now recall in which the old slave auction style was quite so frankly brought out.

What is this but slavery? Three days ago the announcement was made of the arrival at San Francisco of the steamer from China bringing twelve hundred Chinese passengers. Only a comparatively few of these were women. Those women who compose a part of that twelve hundred are taken to the block and knocked down to the highest bidder under the auctioneer's hammer. Preparations had been made beforehand, and everything got in readiness for this sale of women, so that the expense and inconvenience of keeping them on hand should be as little as possible. They came as a cargo of merchandise comes, "consigned to one of the six Chinese companies." This tells the whole story. In pagan China women are slaves and are bought and sold as chattels. This pagan barbarity they have transferred to our shores, and propose to practice it in Christian America.

For a long time after the enlightened conscience of the Christian world pronounced it wrong for one human being to have a proprietary interest in the person of another, the United States had the finger of scorn pointed at them because in some of them this species of property existed and was protected by law. If the misguided Southern people are entitled to the thanks of the entire country for anything connected with the terrible war they inaugurated, it is for making it necessary in that conflict for the Government not only to strike off the chains that bound the slave to his master, but to make it legally impossible for a slave to exist in any State or Territory of the Union. Of all nations on the face of the earth, the American Republic should be the last to tolerate such a relation between human beings as that of master and slave. The very atmosphere of America ought to impart a sense of complete personal liberty to every person that breathes it.

The people, as a community, have done their part. Slavery, as an institution can not exist. The law has gone forth that personal liberty shall be guarantied to every man and woman who sets foot upon American soil, except such as are imprisoned upon conviction of crime. It now remains for the individuals to do their share. Laws never enforce themselves. Somebody must put the machinery in motion. If the law is trodden under foot and the rights of human beings violated, it is expected that some interested party will make complaint and furnish evidence to establish the guilt of the wrong-doer. In most of the ordinary cases this is done by the party directly aggrieved, but not always. It sometimes happens that from extreme youth or extreme age, from infirmity, bodily or mental, or from some other cause, the individual injured cannot or dare not make complaint, and some other person or persons take up their cause and prosecute it in their behalf. Here is a case for the exercise of this sort of philanthropy. We have no means of knowing whether these Chinese women feel themselves wronged or not. They have made no complaint. They may be in the condition that many of the colored people were said to be in before the rebellion—so benumbed in all their moral and intellectual natures as not to realize the fact of their oppression. This view does not mend the matter any. In the case of the negroes, the fact of their ignorance was regarded as only an aggravation of the offense of slavery, and we see no good reason why the same logic is not applicable to the case of the Chinawomen. If the inhumanity of African slavery was so great as to call for the active labors of philanthropic individuals and societies to insure the strict enforcement of every law that tended to ameliorate the condition of the African slave, as few at the present time will say it was not, why do not these sales of women in free California by public vendue, in accordance with the customs of pagan China, demand the same now? The call was promptly and nobly responded to in the colored man's case; we shall see whether it will be in that of the Chinese women.

We have almost despaired at times of ever being able to keep track of the Spanish ministry, so frequent are the changes at Madrid. We have it however as it was on the twentieth day of July, and as it will remain most likely until the twentieth day of August. The Salmeron ministry was presented to the Cortes on the 20th inst. It is constituted as follows: Salmeron, President; [illegible] Gonzalez, Minister of Finance; Soler, Minister of State; Rodriguez, Minister of Justice; General Gonzalez, Minister of War; Maisonnave, Minister of Interior; Oreiro, Minister of Marine; Palanca, Minister of Colonies; Gonzalez, Minister of Public Works. It is stated that Senor Castelar will probably be elected President of the Cortes.

There is a square issue now between the Mansard roof and the insurance companies, with odds in favor of the latter. The National Board of Underwriters has resolved that after the first day of January next, the rates of insurance for buildings adorned with the French roof shall be advanced [illegible] per cent.

Nothing can chill the ardent rage of the average New York reporter. Several correspondents who could not secure passage on the Tigress as representatives of the Metropolitan press have shipped as seamen on that vessel.

Barrett says the scheme of the Warmoth ring to keep the control of Louisiana politics was the most gigantic fraud that ever existed. Barrett displays excellent discretion in confining his comparison to those frauds that have failed.

The Butte Record discovers the name of Senator Aaron A. Sargent in a list of stockholders in the Central Pacific Railroad Company, and goes for his Senatorial scalp in appropriate style.

LUDICROUS DISCUSSION.

Criminal justice in some cases takes cognizance of an attempt to commit a crime, punishing the attempt as a distinct offense, but we have no recollection of reading a case in the law books in which a man was indicted for merely contemplating a crime. The first case of this nature on record is that against U. S. Grant, President of the United States. Some weeks ago an information was filed, as it were, by the New York Herald, the gravamen of which was that he was contemplating a third term of office. No testimony of any kind was adduced in support of the charge. Not an act of the President's, official or private, was pointed to as indicating such a purpose on his part. It was simply stated that the President had Cæsarism in his head, whatever Cæsarism may be when accurately defined, and that the object of this indwelling of Cæsarism is to cause the President to meditate an attempt to force his renomination when the time for another Presidential campaign arrives.

This looks like rather a flimsy basis for an attack upon the President. Only a little more than six months of the first year of his term has elapsed. What he may contemplate doing politically three years hence Grant is about the last politician in America to know, or to state if he did know. But the grave charge having been made by the Herald, the other opposition papers were but too ready to echo it, and now it has been repeated and reiterated with considerable enlargement at each time, till some of the Republican journals seem to think it necessary to meet it with such evidence as may be at hand tending to show its untruth. A more ridiculous thing was never done by sensible people. This whole matter was nothing more, in its origin, than a piece of pure fiction, such as the Herald not infrequently indulges in upon political matters. The writer of the attack on the Cæsarism of Grant, we dare say, sits in his office and laughs himself fat at the noise his political roguery has made in the world, and thinks what an easy thing it is sometimes to humbug intelligent men. Whenever the sensation flags a little, he puts up a crisp paragraph with the talismanic word—Cæsarism—in it, and forthwith all the pack bay the President, except those who bay the pack. The idea of that transparent invention of the Herald, ingeniously and handsomely written though it was, certainly such a discussion as it has seems too absurd for credence.

THE FRENCH SUCCESSION.

The Albany (N. Y.) Journal discusses French politics and prospects under the McMahon rule. It thinks that "with the overthrow of Thiers something of the political blight that rested on the wrecks of the Empire has passed away." Prince Napoleon is in Paris watching with as much vigilance as his phlegmatic nature will admit of, and possibly not without definite hopes, the progress of events. Eugenie, with her boy of seventeen, who is supposed to possess somewhat of the faith and courage of the Bonapartes, is an anxious spectator of the drama of government across the channel. The boy himself is full of political purposes, which, though doubtless immature and crude, are only like the plans and purposes of all his family in their youth, and signify nothing except that he is a Napoleon.

Eugenie knows little of politics and has no genius for political affairs. She is a devoted mother, as she was a devoted wife, has a beautiful face and a passion for whatever glitters. Her only settled and fixed political object is the aggrandizement of her family; her only political maxim that the church is over all and above all other interests to be guarded.

She will be far from a match in scheming for even the slow-moving Prince Napoleon, but she will doubtless have on her side the influence of the President and of all adherents of the Bonapartes. The family would not be represented in the direct line by Prince Napoleon, and would be by her boy. This is an advantage; legitimacy is much in most monarchy, and it will go for something even in France should the transition from Republic to Empire be determined upon. This legitimacy, however, would be no more than simply the regular descent of usurpation. The real heirs of the throne seem pretty well out of the way. It is the Republic or the restoration of the Napoleonic government, with tendencies toward the latter.

SENSIBLE WORDS.

The San Francisco Chronicle is understood to be the especial organ of the anti-Chinese sentiment in California, and it is diligent in business. But it does not uphold those atrocious persecutions which disgrace that city so frequently, as the following extract from one of its editorial articles indicates:

We pride ourselves on our great superiority to these Asiatics but we bring ourselves down almost to their level by refraining from punishing, to the extent of the law, the outrages committed upon them. A sufficient number of officers ought to be kept in the Chinese quarters of the city to protect them at all times. If we must have them among us, let us by all means encourage them to adopt orderly, well behaved, decent habits by setting them a good example, rather than by laxity in our repression of abuses against them invite them to pursue a life of vice and of predatory warfare against the community. The police authorities should give this matter their close attention.

The murder of Goss by Udderzook is one of the most atrocious crimes of the year. Pennsylvania exchanges containing full [illegible] of the examination have reached us. There are some points of resemblance between this and the murder of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster in 1849. In both instances the guilty parties tried to conceal their crimes by dissecting the bodies of their victims and disposing the parts in different places. The Lancaster Examiner says that no surgeon could have performed his work more skillfully than did Udderzook. There is a strong probability that the murderer will be hung.

Sir Edward Thornton, Minister from the court of St. James, has leased the [illegible] place on the Hudson for four months and will make it the headquarters for himself, family, secretaries, servants and attendants this summer—in all twenty or thirty persons.

Judge Lawrence, Judge Trumbull and ex-Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin have formed a law partnership in Chicago. Judge Lawrence was lately Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Illinois, and all three are able and experienced lawyers.

Union College has conferred the degree of LL. D. upon Horatio Seymour and John A. Dix. Mr. Blatchford has presented the institution with $10,000 for a library.

VICTORIA.

Leaving Tacoma at midnight with the obliging Capt. J. A. Starr in command and conducting affairs with his usual energy and promptness, we were awakened at 5 o'clock A. M. at Port Madison, having left Seattle undisturbed. After a brief [illegible] we touched at Port [illegible] without interruption [illegible] Port Townsend [illegible] the Sound. [illegible] Port Townsend [illegible] on its beach and bluff like a white bird on the wave, and is one of the most beautiful sites on the Sound. Victoria looks older than it is. The somber color of its brick and rather low and square structures of stone and wooden buildings give a venerable as well as solid appearance to the city. The business men complain of very dull times. The location of the terminus at Esquimalt excited property holders, but this had died away. Some think this railroad will be built; among them His Excellency Gov. Trutch is full of confidence, and others doubt about the enterprise. Many desire annexation to the United States while others want reciprocity treaties.

We met the publishers and editors of the British Colonist and Standard and found a courteous welcome to their city. These gentlemen do their utmost to encourage enterprise and awaken the just hopes of the people. It is deemed wise to rely upon the construction of the proposed Canadian and Pacific railway either by the incorporators or more probably the Government, which would be better for all and much surer for the prospects of Victoria. They like ourselves need the assurance which the building of a few miles of the road on this side annually would give. Success to their hopes.

SUBJECT—"Fallacies and False Assumptions of the Christian Clergy."

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS — AMONG others—will be disposed of:

If we reject the Bible we must reject all history.

The Bible narratives are corroborated by Pagan historians.

Bad men would not write a book that condemns sin; good men would not themselves write a book and ascribe it to God.

The character and moral teachings of Jesus prove his Divine mission.

Infidelity is a mere negation. It gives nothing in the place of Christianity.

The teachings of modern Freethought fail to satisfy the popular mind.

Admission Free.

Mr. Underwood will give the Clergy an opportunity to criticise and combat any of his positions at the close of the Lecture.

He does not believe in assailing men's cherished convictions and allowing no chance for reply.

CITY.

RAT TRAP.—The ship[illegible] quently commit havoc [illegible] grain which is piled up on [illegible] awaiting shipment [illegible] readed by the rodents [illegible] sacks in order [illegible] source of trouble and annoyance [illegible] sacks cut up and their contents [illegible] the wharf a number of experiments [illegible] to and traps of various [illegible] around the wharves to catch [illegible] animals. Being gifted with [illegible] cious instincts the average rat [illegible] in its maneuvers that [illegible] piece of steel trap [illegible] and spring traps have [illegible] rats having learned [illegible] severely alone. Yesterday we [illegible] very effective trap in [illegible] remain destroyers are very simple [illegible] tion and are well calculated [illegible] barrel with one head knocked [illegible] barrel is filled about one third full with water. A very plain piece of board about [illegible] long and three wide, is arranged like a trap door over the top of the barrel. [illegible] poised on the edge so that the least [illegible] will cause it to tilt over into the barrel. At the end overhanging the water is attached a piece of bait. Attracted by the tempting morsel the rat advances boldly toward the end. No sooner does the animal cross the fatal line than it is precipitated into the water and perishes while the treacherous board returns to its former position and is ready to catch another rodent. So simple does the whole affair look that it deceives the acute instincts of these cautious animals. These kind of traps are [illegible] be very superior.

FINGERS CUT OFF.—A pattern maker named Burke, employed at one of the foundries of the city, met with a severe accident last evening, by having two fingers of his right hand entirely severed. For the first time since the breaking of a portion of the machinery of the fire engine belonging to Protection No. 1 was taken out for trial. The damaged portions were repaired and steam was raised to see how the machinery would work. Two of the cogwheels were left uncovered so as to [illegible] the engineer to determine better how they worked. While the machinery was under full headway Burke came around the machine and was looking on. He conducted [illegible] in a very careless reckless manner [illegible] so near several times that his [illegible] narrowly escaped being caught in the [illegible]. He was repeatedly cautioned to keep away, but refused to obey the engineer and those who were standing around. As he was throwing his digits among the machinery in a foolishly reckless manner two of them were [illegible] between the cogwheels and crushed off in a moment. Burke was under the influence of [illegible] at the time and it was thought he was partially insane. The hand was badly [illegible] and the fingers reduced to a jelly. The [illegible] was a shocking one and there [illegible] to exist no possible reason or excuse for such an event.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.—Two men—Mr. O[illegible]kirk, a carpenter, and Thomas Huntington a [illegible] while out taking a drive last evening, about 8 o'clock, met with quite a serious [illegible]. While driving leisurely down Fourth street [illegible] took a sudden fright at some [illegible] a gate at one side of the street. [illegible] driver could check the horse or exercise the least control, it sprang forward like a shot. Coming to the intersection of Harrison street, the frightened animal swerved to one side and precipitated both men to the ground. [illegible] the horse dashed furiously, until it came to [illegible] street. Not entertaining a high regard for the uses of a fence, the animal [illegible] a drive for one which happened to stand conveniently near. But the experiment [illegible] abortive failure. An instant later the horse was laid sprawling on the sidewalk with a badly bruised shoulder, while one of the four wheels of the vehicle was smashed to [illegible] the animal could rise to its feet [illegible] the escapade, several persons [illegible] and caught it. Mr Huntington, it is [illegible] sustained severe injuries from the fall [illegible] the accident he was placed in a [illegible] home. So far as we have [illegible], no bones were broken. Mr. C[illegible] escaped with a few slight [illegible]

[illegible].—A lively tussle took place near the corner of Washington and [illegible] between a young bear and a [illegible] dog. A large crowd was as a [illegible], attracted to the locality [illegible] sanguinary contest. The [illegible] five minutes, and was hugely [illegible] who possess an appetite for [illegible] the bear was but a cub [illegible] more than one-third grown—he held his own with remarkable tenacity and gave his [illegible] more experienced antagonist a lively time. However, pluck could not win the day, and it soon became apparent that [illegible] the most and worst part of the [illegible]. Several parties interfered to separate the enraged animals, but it was easier to start the fight than to stop the fun. After [illegible] and hauling the animals about for some [illegible] they were at last separated but not until the dog's tail was nearly pulled off and one of the bear's hind legs almost dislocated. [illegible] the dog nor the bear sustained severe [illegible] the fight the fur was caused to fly pretty lively, but a few scratches constituted the total of the damages.

[illegible] about one week ago the timbers for the hull of the new steamer belonging to the [illegible] were laid, and work is being [illegible] with all possible vigor. The knees have [illegible] the entire frame [illegible] and the [illegible] for the deck is being and [illegible] the hull will follow in the [illegible] week. The contract calls for the [illegible] of the boat by the first of September, but owing to the unavoidable delay [illegible] the high water, the time will [illegible] be extended. However, work will be [illegible] forward actively until the craft is finished. The dimensions of this steamer are [illegible] 125 feet, 25 feet beam, and 5 feet hold. This boat will be one of the lightest boats on the river, and is being [illegible] with special reference to navigating the Upper Willamette during the lowest stage of water. It is the intention of the contractor [illegible] to have the boat ready to launch about the 15th of August. Capt Jos Kellogg [illegible] superintending the construction of the new [illegible].

A FINE YACHT.—Example is contagious and the sailing and rowing mania, which [illegible] raging, is no exception to the rule. Now [illegible] everybody must belong to either a boat club or rowing club or be the proprietor of a yacht. In a few days a handsome little yacht will be added to the number of [illegible] boats now owned by [illegible] naturally inclined [illegible] residing in or near the city. The [illegible] is owned jointly by Major H M K[illegible] and Mr S O Potter. It has so far advanced [illegible] completion that the rigging is [illegible], and the boat is receiving the last touches from the painters brush. Saturday next [illegible] been the day appointed on which the craft [illegible] to be launched. The yacht is 18 feet [illegible] 5 feet wide. A more handsome [illegible] rarely seen. Mr Potter sent below [illegible] since for a number of signals and [illegible] new yacht. She will be [illegible] and to make the trial trip in two w[illegible] which supports the unique name [illegible] Her owners justly feel proud [illegible]

FROM VICTORIA.—The steamer [illegible] arrived here on Wednesday morning [illegible] Sound and Sound ports. This steamer brought a full cargo of lime, oil, skins [illegible] more than four months [illegible] this port. During this time or [illegible] of the steamer has been [illegible] Victoria undergoing a complete [illegible] New plating has been used in [illegible] the hull, in substitution of the old [illegible] pairs have been made to her [illegible] everything pertaining to the [illegible] Throughout, the vessel can be [illegible] as new. She will probably be [illegible] Sitka route.

AT ASTORIA.—Both the ship [illegible] and [illegible] Confidence are lying at Astoria. [illegible] will receive their complement of grain in a few days and be off for Europe. The bark [illegible] Trade and brig Orient are lying at [illegible] for San Francisco, the former will [illegible] staves, and the latter with lumber. All [illegible] several vessels are due none are reported [illegible] the bar.

DROWNING [illegible]

STAR B[illegible] [illegible] the water exceeding, the string and summer freshet. The colors [illegible] and black—will be easily distinguishable [illegible] at all times.

GONE DOWN.—This morning the dredge [illegible] will be towed down the river and will begin operations in a few days. Where work will [illegible] menced just this [illegible] cannot be determined even by those who are to operate the machinery. Before this fact can be determined a preliminary survey will probably be made along the channel of the Willamette and Columbia. We would be safe in saying that work will be commenced at some point between this city and Astoria but it would be impossible to state the precise place. Whenever the survey indicates the shallowest point there operations will be commenced.

ENTERTAINING LECTURE.—Hon. Wm. O. Clark of California is now on his way home from a journey around the world, and while stopping in our city has been understood [illegible] intended to give two lectures to our citizens before his departure. The first of these will probably be given on Saturday evening, and the second, the subject of which will be "Palestine and the Holy Land," on Sunday evening. We anticipate a rare treat for those who attend, as Mr Clark is an experienced lecturer and having visited the localities of which he will speak, is well prepared to instruct his audience concerning them.

FINALLY DECIDED.

It is an old but true saying that "a man is known by the books he reads and the company he keeps." This saying is illustrative of the great sewing machine war in which nearly all the second-class machines have played prominent parts, expending much ammunition and making forced marches attended with great loss. But our readers have not seen the name of the world renowned GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE flourished before the people in the above connection, and this dignified reserve has established the popularity of the GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE, now and forever. It stands on its respectability and merits. These machines make the ELASTIC STITCH and LOCK STITCH and will be sold on installments of $10 per month. W. J. Sh[illegible] agent 75 First street.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

[illegible]

[illegible] Would we know their dimensions [illegible] at about Exchange. But is not a [illegible] is quick to suggest it is to ask what means to employ in such an undertaking. When we [illegible] The object then that the objections which [illegible] On the other hand is the object worthy [illegible] with the bond [illegible] which we are bound to [illegible]. What is the object of the Young Men's Christian Association? Have we not its design plainly—yes [illegible] The most [illegible] than the distinct signification that it aims to inculcate Christian principles into the minds and lives of the young men. What association has or can have a worthier, more important or more [illegible] object than this? In behalf of no class or sex of the human family are we called upon so loudly, so earnestly, so eloquently, we so imploringly to make special effort for their conversion to God as on behalf of those who are young men? Not that the soul of a young man is of more value than the soul of any other for whom Christ died but because on the journey from the cradle to the grave there is no part of the passage so critical as that part over which they who are young men must pass. It is critical and why? Not so much because it is there the plasticity of youth begins to congeal and crystalize into permanent habits, for because, a fact open to the observation of all and supported by the experience of all who have been or are young men, that theirs is the age in which the passions and appetites are most boisterous and violent in their clamorings for indulgence. Their desires glow and glare with the fiery and terrible fierceness of the molten liquid which under the power of the most intense mechanical heat boils and fuses with restrained madness. Were there no other reason than the constitutional peculiarities of young men which prompt them to self gratification by the use of means forbidden both by the constitution of their nature and the Word of God, is not that enough of itself to enlist our deepest sympathies and heartiest efforts in their safety? But this is not all, corresponding to these desires within, which in their surgings make the framework of the strongest and best fitted resolutions of restraint quiver and tremble as the leaf, are multitudinous opportunities for their gratification from without. And oh! with what craft and cunning are these opportunities prepared and presented! How they shine and sparkle with the gilded appearance of innocence and enjoyment. How artfully are they adapted to the particular tastes and surroundings of the person for whose capture they are intended! As the chameleon assumes the color of the grass in which it lies, that it may be more successful in capturing the insects lighting thereon, and as the polypus taketh the color of the rock under which it lurketh, that the fish may come near him without fear of danger, so the great destroyer of souls covertly approaches man and especially young men keeping completely in the dark all the disastrous issues of vice by clothing it with the brightest promises [illegible] with an almost irresistible fascination. And if perchance the poor creature, being allured thereby, is reminded that he is about to begin a career which, though strewn at its entrance with the most flattering promises, must of very necessity lead on to and terminate in deeds the most disgraceful. How quick and how adroit is the wily one to excite that feeling of self confidence of which all young men are especially possessed, thereby [illegible] the mind against such warning, leading it to express itself in language most contemptuous. "Is thy servant a dog that he should do this thing?" I notice particularly the various avenues through which the common enemy of mankind seeks the downfall of young men is the work of hours, hence we cannot here and now. But hear a young heart, the description of their general character as experienced by that famous yet wretched poet Byron, who wrote from the black depths of his own tormented spirit the following in his [illegible] Childe Harold.

Ah, yes, how soft are thy voluptuous ways,
While boyish blood is mantling, who can 'scape
The fascination of thy magic gaze?
A cherub hydra round us dost thou gape,
And mould to every taste thy dear delusive shape.

Believing that this hasty glance at the intensity of the impulses by which young men are instigated to action and the allurements by which they are so thickly set [illegible] sufficient [illegible] them. All want to [illegible] associations [illegible] recruit [illegible] enlisted under the banner of King Immanuel. The prince of darkness well knows [illegible] place of responsibility on earth [illegible] cause He would have you minister to His work, and especially that work which is given [illegible]. I may say without fear of being successfully contradicted that it is [illegible] all to point to a single instance [illegible] the many wonderful reformations which have been wrought in the church in modern times [illegible] Abraham that then in the purpose of [illegible] has not been the chief [illegible] cution thereof. The reformers who [illegible] they but such men as we have described? [illegible] then the Great Captain of Salvation [illegible] employed this class in making charges and storming the fortresses [illegible] that they are still to carry on the work. Would the church of Christ [illegible] to tear down the stronghold of sin [illegible] must employ the same force she always employed. There is [illegible] obligation to put this special strenuous effort [illegible] the young men [illegible] Men's Christian Association [illegible] against this Association [illegible] the church on the ground that [illegible] have been persons who have felt and spoken in this way yet it does not legitimately follow that this institution is in opposition or an injury to the Church. What is the Church? [illegible] title Church. The Young Men's Christian Association instead of being an injury [illegible] the strong arm of the Church. It is the organization in which the disciples of our Lord can and are working unitedly. We meet together not as Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians or any other [illegible] but as Christians. That is enough for us, and with our hearts firmly fixed on one object, the glory of God in the salvation of young men we [illegible] together we labor together, never once thinking of our distinctions, simply because under the circumstances we cannot. These associations injure the church?

What is the church? Let truthful [illegible] speak.
Thus shall old reply, The faithful pure and meek
From Christian folds the one selected race
Of all professions and of every place.

How can these associations work an injury to the idea and the truly Scriptural idea of the church, as expressed by the poet in the lines just repeated. I admit and not only admit but rejoice to say that the tendency of these associations is the destruction of the wrinkled and ragged cloth and paper partitions which have so long defaced the beautiful visage of our fair Zion. What a grand opportunity these associations afford us to exercise that charity which abideth forever. How much the church in carrying them on looks like she was on her way back to that primitive condition in which she was when the world long exclaimed admiringly, "Behold how these Christians love one another."

I trust you will not be wearied by having your attention called to the peculiar local obligations demanding that such an association be well sustained in your city. Portland occupies a position held by no other city in the whole land. You stand here to receive all who come from the great East to make their homes in this, to be still greater West. The majority of those coming are young men, sons of pious parents. They stop with you until they have determined in what direction from here they shall go. Is it not important that there be some attractive place—not a saloon—where they can spend their hours profitably?—where they can feel at home?—some place where they can seek protection from the dazzling and attractive devices of Satan? You he is certain to attempt their capture. And oh! how strong are their inclinations to taste for once the forbidden pleasures offered by the world! Mothers in cities, in towns, in country hamlets and lone farm houses are daily praying for the safety of their sons who have gone to the great Northwest. Is not the honor of being the instrumentality used by Providence in answering their prayers one worth laboring for?

For the sake of the young men themselves in the name of the Head of the Church, in behalf of our country's weal and for the cultivation of that charity which never faileth, I urge you my fellow followers of Christ to increased energy and earnestness in the future prosecution of the work which you have so opportunely begun and so creditably carried on. And it shall be your everlasting glory to wear crowns ornated with the brightest jewels receiving their luster from being dipped in the blood of the Lamb.

SOME people may become excited over the "terminus" of the Northern Pacific Railroad on Puget Sound but it does not disturb Beck & Waldman, corner Front and Washington streets in the least as they intend to pursue the usual course to their customers and that is to sell goods at prices which will enable those with limited means to provide themselves with good clothing at a very small outlay of money. Parents should bring their children to this house for neat fitting suits.

UPON the health of the teeth depends the purity of the breath. Preserve them unblemished by the use of the famous SOZODONT that perfectly harmless vegetable preparation, and you will never regret it.

A monument as big as the grand pyramid might be built of the teeth that have been ruined by neglect. Shall this thing go on in the face of the great fact that SOZODONT is a certain preventive of dental decay. 28

A crowd of "Horse Men," and others daily throng the stores in country and town for Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders. They understand that horses cannot be kept in good condition without them and with them can be on a much less quantity of grain.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr J S Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medical qualities of the Eucalyptus which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medical utility, having been [illegible] household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHOEA, etc.

The preparation is the result of Dr Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U S Marine Hospital in San Francisco, in 1863 and 1864, where he had unusual facilities for testing the [illegible] in the [illegible] preparing the remedy as it is now. SNAKES AND HOGS.

THE REASON INDIA IS INFESTED WITH SNAKES—REPTILES DRIVEN [illegible] AN ARMY BACK—THE AMERICAN [illegible] BEST FRIEND—A FIGHT BETWEEN A SOW AND A RATTLESNAKE.

[W[illegible] New York Sun.]

[illegible] published in the Secret June [illegible] on the subject of the terrible mortality from snake bites in India [illegible] startling facts [illegible] surprising of which is the great number of persons who perish annually in British India from attacks by these reptiles [illegible] is [illegible] that [illegible] many as twenty thousand people are killed by snakes in Hindostan alone.

From what we read of India it would seem that in many of its populated parts that country are the most infested with poisonous reptiles in other words where there are most people there the greatest number of snakes are to be found. Exactly the reverse of this is the case in America [illegible] our own country extends [illegible] numerous the population the fewer the snakes of the fatal kind though we have probably a greater variety of deadly serpents that exists in any other quarter of the globe. Among these may be enumerated the several species of moccasin the copperhead and that purely American reptile the rattlesnake which M Buffon in his article on le serpent à sonette says inhabits nearly all the countries of the New World. Besides these and other varieties may be noticed the [illegible] of the marshes of the lower Mississippi a dark short muscular viper with the inside of its mouth perfectly white which lurks in swampy places, for whose bite no antidote is known, but is quickly followed by certain death.

A DANGEROUS SUPERSTITION.

There are two ways of accounting for the superabundance of snakes in India. One is by the superstitious veneration of the Hindoos for the most deadly serpents, which leaves them unmolested, and enables them to multiply without limit. Some such result as this must also have been realized in ancient Egypt where all sorts of reptiles were worshipped. Josephus tells us that Moses was in the military service of Pharaoh before he quarreled with that potentate. In one of his expeditions against the Nubians his army was so harassed by the serpents, which swarmed the line of his march up the Nile that he lost more men by snake bites than from the darts of the Nubians. Indeed his army according to this authority, on one or two occasions was nearly put to route by venomous snakes.

The other and more convincing reason for the vast numbers of snakes in India is the scarcity of hogs in a country where the use of swine's flesh is prohibited as an article of food. Neither the Hindoo nor the Mahometan religion permits the eating of pork in any form. The country is deprived of a most efficient auxiliary in the destruction of these pets. The hog is the mortal enemy of snakes. He kills them because he hates them, and devours them when dead. Whenever the increase of this useful animal is encouraged, he compensates society for its protection by thus abating a harmful nuisance. But the Hindoo despises the hog while he patronizes the snake and gets rewarded for his preference by his race being stung to death at the rate of twenty thousand annually.

SNAKE DESTROYERS.

The Anglo-Saxon or American differs from the effete [illegible] Indian in this as in most other respects. He kills the snake and fosters the hog, which is decidedly the most inveterate [illegible] of the two. When the Anglo-American undertakes the settlement of a new country, he wants three things above all others. An axe a rifle and a hog. If he chances to go into the wilderness alone however, the hog soon follows as an inevitable consequence. Just in proportion as the hog multiplies and increases in a newly settled country, in the same ratio do serpents and poisonous reptiles d[illegible]pear. It is not meant to be implied that any such motive as snake killing enters into the calculations of the frontiersmen in raising hogs. In general, he does not give the snakes that may infest his neighborhood a thought. He kills them when they come in his way and for[illegible] them. The hog does the most of that sort of work. He is a most industrious forager, always around in quest of something to eat. In his incessant search for provender he ofttimes disturbs the snake in his lair who, as a rule, would prefer to be let alone but [illegible] let him alone, but snaps him between his teeth, crushes and devours him.

There are also active enemies of the snakes to be found among the things that are feræ naturæ, such as the deer, the elk, &c, which kill by [illegible] ing him [illegible] h their sharp hoofs. But these animals only destroy the snake when he comes in their way. The hog goes at him with the twofold incentive of destroying an enemy and devouring him. The result is the snake give up the contest after a while and glide off to some rocky fastness or impenetrable fen. The hog is almost impervious to the bite of the most deadly serpent. Like the hero of Greek fable he has but one available spot which lies, not in his heel but in his neck. If the snake chances to strike him on the main artery, where it passes through the neck near the skin, the hog dies. If he strikes him at any other point the wound amounts to no more than the prick of a pin would, the virus taking no effect whatever. The quadruped seems to be aware of this one danger, and guards against it with the skill of a veteran warrior.

A DEADLY ENCOUNTER.

The writer once witn[illegible] a combat between a sow and a rattlesnake of the largest kind his attention being attracted to the scene by the angry screams of the hog. The snake lay in coil beneath a spreading live oak. The broad, [illegible] head was raised rigidly about six inches over his coiled body, his eyes bright as diamonds, flashing fury, and his forked tongue darting defiance at his enemy. Every muscle, now in tension, could be traced beneath his skin, while his tail, slightly erected and tremulous with nervous energy, gave forth from the tapering rattle at its extremity that peculiar sharp ringing sound a person never forgets who has heard it once. The sow with [illegible] circled round the snake, gnashing her teeth, grunting and [illegible]. She showed game, but nothing like the [illegible] of her sinewy antagonist. The sow made divers demonstrations of feints to which the snake responded by [illegible] from half-coil, but each time instantly recovering himself. At length, the sow coming within his reach the snake made a desperate spring of his entire length, fastening his fangs in her fore legs as she sprang away from him. The sow gave an agonized squeal but quickly disengaged herself, and before the snake could recover his coil her foot was on his neck and in another moment she had snapped off his head.

The Anglo-American is a distinguished civilizer no doubt, but he could not well do without the hog which animal gives him immunity from the bites of deadly snakes. Let the Hindoo discard some of his absurd traditional prejudices and take the hog into favor.
